

Order release

Releasing an order removes the On-hold status and restores the order to its previous processing state. This action is available exclusively for orders that are currently on hold.

The release action is executed directly through a button. No modal or confirmation dialog is displayed.

Releasing an order reverses all changes introduced by the on-hold state. The order's main status is restored to the value it held before being placed on hold, and all line items return to their original stage and status.
